Albuquerque Office of Neighborhood Coordination

Organizes neighborhoods throughout the city of Albuquerque by actings as a liason between the neighborhood associations and the local government, and providing workshops. The office is a division of the City Council Dept. With more than 250 registered neighborhood associations and homeowner associations citywide, the ONC provides trainings, promotes increased communication, and shares information between neighborhood groups and residents, helping them build stronger relationships and communities.

Albuquerque Office of Neighborhood Coordination (ONC)

The goal of the Office of Neighborhood Coordination (ONC) is to help create and promote healthy and vibrant neighborhoods and support residents as they more actively and constructively engage with their community. We want to assist neighborhoods in utilizing existing resources, finding and using new ones, and maintaining meaningful involvement with local communities and government.
