STEM Scholarship Program for educators (in-school and out-of-school)

ASSET believes all students deserve a high-quality STEM education. Unfortunately, budget constraints and resource limitations prevent schools and organizations from implementing, scaling and sustaining science, technology, engineering and math programs. ASSET launched the STEM Scholarship Program to equip under-resourced educators with proven instructional tools and resources, including professional development and hands-on STEM materials.

Preference is given to schools and organizations with high rates of Free and Reduced-Price Lunch (FRPL) eligibility, low achievement on statewide assessments and high levels of diversity.
