Borderlands Ballet Company

The BBC's performance mission is achieved through the production of original dance productions. These performances serve to bring professional-level dance to the region. It also provides a quality venue for high-caliber local and regional talent and serves as a bridge for BBC dancers to transition into national or international dance companies.

The BBC also serves the region with significant educational and humanitarian outreach. Outreach goals are achieved through a variety of mechanisms:

- The company partners with a world-class dance academy that helps provide first rate instruction for aspiring local dancers and meaningful programs for non-professional dancers.
- The company will provide affordable access to primary school children and other selected groups of performances of the BBC's productions.
- Community outreach is achieved through fund-raising support of worthy charitable organizations in the region.
