New Media Fellowship Program

Littlelobe's New Media Arts Fellowship provides youth producers with new media tools and skills, mentorship, income and experience in the workplace. Fellows learn how to craft stories that are relevant and important to themselves and their surrounding community. The media products that Littlelobe's Fellows create are built to amplify marginalized voices in New Mexico's rural and urban communities.

This program is built specifically for young people who may be considered "at-risk", "disconnected", or otherwise marginalized.
