New Mexico Aids Services

New Mexico AIDS Services is a not-for-profit organization that provides services for men, women, and children who are impacted by HIV-AIDS. We provide case management to nearly 600 people in eight counties in central and northwest New Mexico. Our Farmington field office services the four corners area, including Gallup and Grants. NMAS offers programs that provide clients and their families with home health care, practical and emotional support, food bank, housing and transportation. We offer prevention case management and prevention-education programs to individuals in the community through counseling, street outreach, prison peer education, HIV testing and counseling, and innovative activities that promote healthy lifestyle choices.
