Owe'neh Bupingeh Pueblo Preservation Project

In one of the most innovative tribal housing projects in the country, the Ohkay Owingeh Housing Authority is working to raise $4 million in private sector funding to complete the Pueblo Preservation Project in the tribe's 700-year-old sacred core. Over the past 12 years , 42 families have moved back into their ancestral adobe homes on the plazas and 25 homes remain to be completed. The tribe made the decision to seek private funding in order to have more diverse, sustainable funding sources, to celebrate tribal self-determination, and to achieve greater equity. The project is rich with heart and humanity and the rebirth of the tribe's ceremonial center has resulted in pride and traditional values and vibrant community.
