Pandemonium Productions

Pandemonium's musical theatre program teaches students to become versatile in their approach to the performing arts. The program provides an equal focus to theatre, music, and dance and to the development of skills and knowledge in each of these performance disciplines. With an ensemble of approximately 45 students, the company prides itself on producing 3 musicals per year with high production values. The students are taught by accomplished musical directors, choreographers, directors and designers, and the company has many community partnerships to enrich the students experience and understanding of the craft. Pandemonium also has an educational outreach program that brings teaching artists into the Santa Fe Public Schools, and a generous scholarship program for those needing tuition assistance. After-school musical theater training; summer program training.
