Parent Organization

Pueblo of Acoma

The Pueblo of Acoma has always been, and is now, an Indian nation which is recognized by the United States as inherently possessing all sovereign authority, except as explicitly limited by the Pueblo of Acoma or by the laws of the United States.

The laws of the Pueblo of Acoma are set out in writing at this time to protect the public welfare of the Acoma Pueblo Community, specifically:

- a)To protect and respect the peace of all persons of the Acoma Community and their property within the territorial boundaries of the Pueblo;
- b)To protect the natural resources and beauty of the Pueblo;
- c)To protect the traditions, customs, land base and human resources of the Pueblo; and
- d)To preserve the life ways, spiritual and physical land base and resources of the Pueblo to provide a tribal home for present and future generations.
