Bridge to Work

RGC Access has a Bridge to Work program for recent graduates from interpreting training programs (ITPs). This program is to assist new interpreters entering the field. Working alongside nationally certified interpreters, RGC Access provides supervised on-the-job mentoring along with professional development tasks to ensure that new interpreters are able to develop and enhance their skills with the best support available. Limited contracts are awarded each year to new interpreters through a competitive process. As a new interpreter in the Bridge to Work program, you will be placed on safe and appropriate community jobs based on your qualifications and paid opportunities to observe working interpreters. You will also meet with the Bridge to Work coordinator for supervision, establishing interpreting goals, and to review recorded work for feedback.
