Transitional Housing Program

Our residential program helps women with recovery support services in a trauma-informed setting. The purpose of the TLP is to offer a trauma-informed, substance-free transitional living space for women recovering from substance use disorders. We're able to meet the needs of women in recovery and explore how to balance the demands of life with the goal of long-term recovery. We work to reintegrate our clients back into the community with new self-awareness and stronger coping skills. We do this through our Intensive Outpatient therapy (IOP), case management services, relapse prevention, health & wellness activities, and other group programming.
